

Bizarre parosteal osteochondromatous proliferation

- Nora lesions
- Benign exophytic osteochondral lesions which have an appearance similar to an osteochondroma and are typically seen in the hands and feet.
- On imaging, BPOPs are shown to be continuous with the underlying cortex, but usually without continuation of the medulla.

